Suede For Stormy Weather

Says Ida Lupino, British Film Actress At Hollywood

"RAIN PROOF" WEAR DISCARDED

London. I always thought, before I reached Hollywood and California, that the Pacific coast basked in eternal sunshine. I was wrong. We are encountering fogs and drizzles at the moment, very much like our own London winter mornings. The advantage of California is that after mid-day the sun does content to come out and be really hot and atone for its bad behaviour early in the day.

I never thought I would need warm winter clothing here, but, contrary to all my guesses, I've had to rush out and buy cosy sports togs. And sports outfits in Hollywood are the loveliest in the world. They are cheap, they are colourful and they are substantial.

Coloured Suede

So for bad weather days I have chosen coloured suede. "Hopeless," I hear you all saying. "Suede fades... goes shiny with wear... spots in the rain... is always impractical. If you can buy substantial suede in Hollywood, Ida Lupino, we can't buy it here—so keep your opinions to yourself."

But wait a minute... wait for it! (as my father always gags). Sally Ellers came to my house last night in the loveliest suede outfit she had bought in a big English store. Admittedly it cost a few shillings more than my rig-out purchased on Hollywood Boulevard, but the difference in price was trifling. The quality was the same.

Atlantic Weather

Sally told me she had worn her long suede sports coat on deck coming over the Atlantic in the stormiest weather and it still looked like new. I have worn my suede outfits in rain and fog here, at football games, and motoring around the countryside in real blizzards. I've been up the mountains and rolled in the snow in it, and still say: "Suede to you!"

The manufacturers of this lovely fabric have found the secret at last of making it stand hard wear, and, being unspottable-lined with silk, it is only half the weight of the coloured leathers we wore a season ago. It is just as warm, and wind-proof, and waterproof.

Scheme In Jade Green

So here is my tale of suede: I have a full-length coat of jade green, belted at the waist and with two huge pockets to dig my hands

WOMENS' RIDING HABITS

Right Clothes Essential For Sport

For riding, if in more than in any other sport, it is necessary to wear the right clothes, correctly put on, because a horsewoman is always bound to attract attention, and any defects in her appearance are thrown into greater relief for that reason.

Well-cut corduroys with riding boots are a good foundation, and there is no hard and fast rule about the wearing of coats because of climatic conditions, though, to be sure, the fortunate possessor of a well-cut riding coat has it for life, and finds it constantly useful and unfailingly well turned out.

Checked or plain tweeds can be used for coats and look well in a contrasting colour. They can be worn either with the white pique stock and hard bowler hat or with a shirt blouse and tie and these seem to be an almost universal choice for the younger riders, the short elastic-sided boots are worn and the jodhpurs fit down over the top of the boot.

Jodhpurs

One of the nicest things to wear with jodhpurs for winter riding is the wool jersey polo sweater which rolls down round the waist, has a zippered fastener at the neck which may be regulated according to the weather, and is as neat when the ride is finished as when it began. There is simply nothing to get out of order. The flannel shirt or polo blouse worn with a cardigan is also popular for youngsters and looks informal and correct.

As for gloves, the correct ones are of string weave, so used because of their grip on the reins and because they enable the rider to maintain that sensitive "feel" of the horse so essential to good riding. Chamol gloves in a canary yellow shade are a good substitute if the string ones are not obtainable.

into when they get cold in the car or on the football field. Just like the old trench coats we used to wear!

There is a jaunty suede cap, like Robin Hood's, with a perky green feather growing round the side of the turned-down brim. Jade green suede gauntlet gloves. Jade green silk polka-dotted man's scarf. Even low-heeled jade green lace-up sports shoes.

Is it smart? I'll say it is! Think of a red, or bright blue, or tan suede outfit like this for business or sports wear this time of year.

Rainy Day Outfit

So if you want a rainy or rough weather outfit this year, discard the idea of an old-fashioned "rain-proof" in drab blue, or grey, or brown. Put a few more pennies in your purse and change your ideas. Buy suede and buy the idea of being the most popular girl in the "gang."

Sally's outfit is pale tan colour, with a nut shade for her hat and shoes. It's just as smart as mine—smarter for her individual colouring.

The ideal suit for town wear according to Adrienne Ames, screen actress, is black satin with an interesting treatment of white butcher's linen. Her hat is the newest version of the inevitable beret, this time in supple black velvet. A wide jewelled bracelet and a fur piece over the arm lend an air of sophistication to an already perfect ensemble.

PRESTIGE RETURNS TO FORMAL FABRIC

Metallic Effects

Cobwebby meshes will restore to lace this fall the prestige which it has somewhat lost as a formal fabric. Cellophane lace, which is in the featherly category, will be high style. De luxe materials and simple lines seem to be the approaching mode.

Metallic effects already are glinting in the fashion landscape. Fringes, particularly the cellophane strip fringe which has been popular for capelets, is one of the incoming trimmings; and silk fringes will also be used.

Washing The Beret

Berets which have been washed at home are inclined to shrink and lose their shape. To obtain the best results immerse the beret in warm, soapy water and squeeze it up and down until it is clean. Then rinse in several bowls of water of the same temperature as the washing water. Finally stretch the beret over the rim of a dessert plate and leave it out of doors to dry slowly. Small woollen caps to be worn with bathing costumes should be stretched over a basin to dry. Pastel-coloured berets and caps may be kept clear and bright by adding a little vinegar to the washing water.

"SWIM JEWELLERY"

Designed Especially For Bathing Suits

SOME LATEST DESIGNS

London. "Swim" jewellery designed especially to wear with the all-fitting bathing and sun suits of the season has taken an odd yet curiously relevant turn. The latest patterns in decorative necklaces and bracelets are made of cork. Cork, barefaced, but beautifully carved, showing its own pale brown colouring and texture, makes the most intriguing necklaces, and the newest of armlets, worn between the wrist and the elbow. These bracelets are made in various widths, from an inch to about two and a half inches, and are gaily decorated in colour with strands of red, white and blue lacquered silk wound at intervals round the cork. The finishing touch is a tiny flat silver fish, anchor or some other sea emblem which studs the cork in the centre. In other cork designs in this swim jewellery brightly coloured enamel lines are introduced in decorative patterns.

Chains Of Cork

Cable chains made of cork are treated in much the same way, and a novelty chain which serves both as a necklace and belt is an amusing and becoming accessory to a sun-bathing bodice and shorts. Minute brightly coloured rings of lacquered silk—or even smarter looking ones in white—make a clever contrast against the quiet cork tints in these new beach jewellery designs.

BRIDGE NOTES

Guesswork Or

by Ely Culbertson.

If, when one is making a game contract, a line of play is found which definitely increases the Declarer's chances of fulfilling this contract, even though it practically gives up any chance of making an overtrick, this line of play should invariably be adopted in Rubber Bridge. The loss of 30 or even more points is negligible when compared with the value of a game.

On to-day's hand Mr. Al Sobel of New York City was able to fulfill a four-spade contract by making a very fine decision as to opponents' distribution and then following this decision by the only line of play which would counteract the bad lay of the cards.

1—Not a particularly good three-spade bid, but the North hand is too strong for a bid of only two.

2—The four-spades response is automatic.

West made the best Opening lead, the heart Knave, and Declarer played the Queen from Dummy, hoping that the lead was the top of an intermediate sequence. East, of course played the King, and Mr. Sobel now realised that if the spade finesse lost, fulfillment of the contract depended upon his ability to get a heart discard in Dummy on the Queen of clubs in his hand. Accordingly, the Ace and King of clubs were led, and when West dropped that Knave on the second round, Mr. Sobel correctly decided that that was not a false-card.

He then made the only play possible to make the hand. The Knave of spades was played from Dummy, and when it was not covered, South went up with the Ace in his own hand and then played out his club Queen. Just as South had hoped, the King of trumps was alone in the West hand, and when West trumped with the King, a losing heart was discarded from Dummy. Had the spade finesse been taken, South would have gone down one, as one diamond trick must be lost in any event.

It is granted that had West held two little spades and East two to the King, Mr. Sobel's play would have been the only way of losing the contract, but the percentages definitely favoured the play actually made, as it could not be a losing one except in the instance named.

HOPES FOR ST. LEGER

WINDSOR LAD UNCHALLENGED FAVOURITE

Unfortunate Scratching Of Colombo

LIGHT BROCADE ALSO OUT WITH STRAINED LEG

Favourite's Fine Form

London, To-day. Few alterations have been made to the riders and starters for the St. Leger, to be run at Doncaster to-day. Jones will ride Tiberius, Taylor St. Hubert and Harry Wragg Pride of the Chilterns.

Probable starters and jockeys are:—
Adept (Dick).
Tiberius (Jones).
Primero (Ray).
Lo Zingaro (Gordon Richards).
Umidwar (Fox).
Achtunen (Perryman).
St. Hubert (Taylor).
Windsor Lad (C. Smirke).
Partiot King (Bezan).
Pride of the Chilterns (Harry Wragg).
Autumn (Childs).

Since Colombo's withdrawal from the St. Leger, Windsor Lad has been an unchallenged favourite. Colombo's injury occurred during the night, and it was thought that his knee came into contact with some protuberance in the stable, possible with the manger.

Shortly before his triumph in the Yorkshire stakes Windsor Lad was said to be flourishing, and the fact that his new owner, Mr. Martin H. Benson, took him over without a veterinary certificate is significant.

Achtunen had some little claim to recognition in the St. Leger. He is the winner of two or three races, although nothing has been seen of him since Ascot, where he gave 10 lb. and a three-length beating to Washington in the Prince of Wales Stakes.

A Great Sire

Windsor Lad is a bay horse by Blandford, the great sire of the day. Blandford is also the sire of Campanula, the winner of the One Thousand Guineas this year, and of Brantome, unbeaten, and acknowledged to be the best three-year-old in France.

He is the sire of Bahram, winner of the richest stake of the year for two-year-olds. A splendid young Blandford horse of unusually impressive physique with a (Continued on Page 5)

According to information received here from Nanking, a spokesman of the China National Amateur Athletic Federation has declared that China will send a soccer team to the 1936 World Olympiad in Berlin and that the South China eleven will probably be chosen to wear this country's colours. It is also stated that China will also send over a few track athletes for the sprinting races.

PERRY DEFENDING U.S. TENNIS TITLE AGAINST ALLISON

Allison beat Sidney Wood in straight sets to cause a big upset. After leading 3-1 in the first set, Wood collapsed before Allison's devastating all-round play, and did not lead again throughout the match.

Driving deep to Woods' backhand, Allison followed up to the net repeatedly to secure points with well tucked away volleys. His play was featured by perfect placements.

PERRY INJURED

Perry strained a tendon in his right ankle in the second set, but says that he will be able to play in the final to-day.

Throughout his encounter with Kirby he was cool and collected. He directed his attack mainly from the baseline, although he was most effective overhead when the opportunity occurred.—Reuter.

W. Lee shut out Chicago's Cubs for nine innings to give Boston Braves the verdict by 2 to 0.

New York Giants, world champions, obtained their revenge after two defeats, beating Pittsburgh Pirates.

Shanghai Interporter Makes 111 Not Out In Flawless Innings

Crickets in Shanghai was recently featured by a flawless century (111 not out), made by that youthful and modest interporter, Sam Kermani, member of the Rees' Tyros, which team in the only league match played yesterday were in need of but 26 runs to claim a victory against the Nomads.

As it was the match ended in a draw, the latter batting first were all out for 226, while the Rees' outfit made 201 for four wickets when stumps were drawn.

Kermani has been batting very consistently this season, easily topping the list of Rees' batsmen, so it was not at all surprising to see him achieve the honour, which be-

HONG KONG SUPERIOR ON TIMES

TIENTSIN SENDING TEAM OF ONLY SIX

ALL COMPETITORS FOR EVENTS

(By G. L.)

THE sensational times established by Noel Hammond in the recent Shanghai swimming championships over the shorter distances, has brought about a revival of hopes for Shanghai's success in the Triangular Interport contest against Hong Kong and Tientsin which starts to-morrow at the French Pool, continuing on September 14 and 15.

Tientsin are unable to send more than 6 swimmers and will not compete for honours in the water-polo matches, relying on the results of the swimming races for victory.

Hong Kong's team of 14 swimming stars left on Saturday by the President Coolidge.

In comparison with the best times put up by the northern competitors in recent championships, Hong Kong's anxiety lies only in the two sprint events, the 50 yards and 100 yards free-style events. In all other styles our swimmers are capable of carrying off the honours.

The visiting teams will be accommodated at the Foreign Y.M.C.A. and a programme of events has been arranged so that their time will be fully occupied. To-morrow, the three teams will be entertained by the committee of the French Club to tiffin and in the evening of that day the first night's events of the three-day gala will be swum off. The French Club committee have been particularly kind in lending their spacious bath, with its large accommodation for spectators. On Monday, the Interport dinner will be held at the Rowing Club.

The Competitors

The following are the competitors of each port in the events:—
Hong Kong and Tientsin are very strong in the long distances and will have to fight it out between themselves for honours while they have also the best men for the backstroke, but Shanghai ought to come into her own in the sprints and may gather points in the relay and the diving. The following are believed to be the heat times made by the various swimmers this year, and form an interesting comparison:—
50 yd. free-style—
W. Lawrence, T. Paget (Hong Kong); G. Niglewitzky, M. Prodan (Tientsin); N. G. Hammond, C. H. Raven (Shanghai).
100 yd. free-style—
W. Lawrence, E. B. Roza; O. Ohlwein, G. Niglewitzky, N. G. Hammond, A. Logan.
220 yd. free-style—
W. Lawrence, L. Roza Pereira; G. Niglewitzky, N. G. Hammond, A. Logan.
440 yd. free-style—
W. Lawrence, L. Roza Pereira; O. Ohlwein, R. Norman; A. Logan, C. H. Raven.
880 yd. free-style—
L. Roza Pereira, A. A. Roza; O. Ohlwein, R. Norman; C. H. Raven, G. M. Unterberger.
100 yd. breast-stroke—
Kwok Chan Hang, E. M. Marques; R. Norman, I. Tuleneff; O. Hagenstein, J. Lane.
100 yd. back-stroke—
Lau Po Hay, L. Roza Pereira; O. Ohlwein, R. Norman; W. Wagner, O. Hagenstein.
Free style relay—

TRACK WIN FOR SWEDEN

Germany's Dramatic Failure

Stockholm, September 2.
At the 27th International Athletic Sport's meeting, Germany suffered a dramatic defeat from Sweden to-day by the narrow margin of one-third of a point. Sweden had gained 100 2/3 points, while Germany obtained only 100 1/3 points.

After the first nine games of the first day, Germany was leading with 50 points against 38.

But to-day, when Sweden's best competitors, namely hammer throwing, hurdle racing, triple jump and discus throwing, started, Germany's lead got smaller and smaller.

When the last event, a relay race over 400 metres, was won by the Swedish team, Sweden's victory was accomplished.—Trans-Ocean Kuo Min.

HOME TURF RECORDS

With winnings of $59,789, Frank Butters has secured more than three times as much stake money as J. Jervis, his nearest rival, as a trainer.

Gordon Richards is still the leading jockey on the English turf, with 126 wins out of a total of 598 mounts, although, the punter, taking a 21 stake, each way in every race, would have been $178.11.3 down on the year's betting to date. The only jockey to show a profit on the 21 stake basis is Perryman, whose 57 winning mounts out of 295 would have paid $121.8.

Stranded from his bride, the former Mrs. John Jacob Astor Dick, Enzo Fiermonte, ex-Italian pugilist, arrives in Hollywood to seek a screen career.

CLYDE AGAIN SECURE LEADERSHIP

With the exception of St. Johnstone, Clyde are the only unbeaten team in the League this season.

St. Mirren recorded their first win yesterday when they secured home points over Falkirk by the odd goal in three, while the Celtic showed a glimpse of their best form to beat the Hibernians by four clear goals in their home fixture. It was their second win in seven games.

SHANGHAI WINS SECOND BOWLS INTERPORT GAME

Last Wood Necessary
To Decide Issue

MAIN WINS GAME FOR SHANGHAI

Shanghai, September 7.

Amidst intense excitement Shanghai and Hankow won their matches and the Interport lawn bowls series, both by the narrow margin of one shot, yesterday afternoon on the Lawn Bowls Club green. Shanghai beating Hong Kong by 18 shots to 17 and Hankow accounting for Shanghai by 19-18, thus giving Shanghai and Hankow two straight wins and the series.

The bowling was nothing like as good as in the previous matches on the Police green, the state of the green with its one narrow hand and one wide being all against it and the cross-wind blowing made it even more difficult.

Both matches were fought out to the bitter end, with the issue in doubt right up to the last wood delivered, the large crowd of enthusiasts present getting all the excitement they wanted. The best game of the two undoubtedly was that between Hankow and Shanghai, whilst there were a few good heads in the Shanghai and Hong Kong match, the majority were very loose. Shanghai beat Hong Kong in both matches, not only because they had that slight advantage on them in the bowling but because they played a more aggressive game. Hankow in both their matches won by better and more consistent bowling.

Hard Fought Game

Shanghai rarely has seen harder fought matches in the Interports or more mistakes made than in yesterday's match between Shanghai and Hong Kong. This was very noticeable on the 20th end, when Hong Kong were laying 2.

Malcolm missed with his first drive and instead of trying to drive again and again missed, which might very easily have cost Shanghai the match.

In Hankow's last end their lead (Cameron Wood) by an accident laid down a very short end, which very nearly cost them the match. Shanghai v. Hong Kong
Shanghai started off well against Hong Kong, who had won the toss and laid a short end. Main with a good wood lay the shot for Shanghai, Omar (the Hong Kong skip) being wide with his first and short with his second. Following this up, Shanghai took the next end with a good 3, both of Main's woods being counters, and the 3rd, with a 2. Hong Kong then got a useful 3 at the 4th, with Beer's woods both counters. Main saved at the 5th, Shanghai getting one and bringing the score to 7-3 in their favour.

Hong Kong took the next two ends with a couple of 2's, levelling the score at 7 all. Basa and Omar's counting on the 6th, and Beer's counting on the 7th.

Shanghai took the 8th with a single owing to a lucky wick of Malcolm's for the shot.

Hong Kong got a 2 on the 9th, bringing them into the lead at 9-8. Shanghai bringing the score level again with a single on the 10th at 9 all, and they followed this up with a useful 3 at the next.

Scores Level

On the 12th, Hong Kong were laying when Malcolm took their wood out for the shot, but Omar came up and recovered it to lay one. Hong Kong also won the next end, with a 2, bringing the score level at 12 all on the 18th. Shanghai took the 14th with a single and Hong Kong the 15th with a single with the score again level. Omar getting the shot when Shanghai lay 3.

Again Shanghai took the next end with a single and Hong Kong the following with a single, bringing the score at the 17th to 14 all. Then Shanghai, thanks to brilliant bowling by Tom Main, got a 2 on the 18th Hong Kong taking the next end with a single.

As the 20th end Hong Kong were laying 2 when the two skips came up to play. Omar tried to lay down a guard but failed, Malcolm drove and missed, Omar

BECKERATH'S 4 AT 586 YARDS HOLE

DECISIVE VICTORY FOR LANGLEY

FRENCH LAD'S GREAT RALLY

(By GEORGE GREENWOOD)

Moortown, August 20.

LEONARD Von Beckerath, the German youth who has hopes of winning the Boys' Championship, survived the first round which was played here to-day. He beat a tall, studious-looking Scottish boy, W. T. Train, of Edinburgh Academy, by 2 and 1, a margin that could scarcely reflect either the run of the game or the difference in golfing ability.

Seventeen years of age, tall and well built, Beckerath is obviously a player of merit. He is rated at 3 at the Krefelder Club, a particularly low handicap for the general run of golfers in Germany.

Beckerath has a sound conception of most of the shots. His swing is good, though a trifle too fast for safety purposes.

Although I do not think he will add the British title to that of the German, he will most probably be seen in the final stages of the championship.

TWO GREAT SPOON SHOTS

Starting none too well, it was not until the tenth that he got square. This was a remarkable hole. It measures 586 yards, and in addition to its being slightly downhill, the wind was behind the player. To avoid the risk of getting into the bunkers running across the course with his drive, Beckerath took a spoon, and, smashing another spoon shot on to the green, got his 4.

Beckerath became 2 up at the short 14th, where he put a spade mashie shot a yard from the flag and holed the putt for a 2. Sticking grimly to his lead, he won by 2 and 1.

A FRENCH VICTORY

One of the two French competitors, Claud Fay, of St. Germain, Paris, won his match. Slightly impetuous, he put four balls out of bounds at the ninth, and then put up his hands as in token of surrender.

Three up at one stage, he threw away his advantage in one wild gamble. With a gallant burst at the end, however, he won the sixteenth and the eighteenth each in four, and beat R. S. Ker, the Scottish boy, by two holes.

Some remarkably good golf was played by a number of the boys, among them being John Langley, of the Stowe School, who captained the English team in the international.

Sixteen years of age and scratch at the Northwood Club, London, Langley gave an insight into the quality of his golf at the first hole.

This measures 500 yards, and though the wind was behind Langley, who is by no means a powerful youth, he was on the corner of the green with a drive and a No. 5 iron.

He won the hole in a "birdie" for four. This was indicative of much of the golf of Langley, who beat his opponent, S. P. McEwen, of Glasgow Academy, by 6 and 5.

Leslie Hardie, the Scottish captain, and another of the competitors, also won comfortably from R. K. W. Sloan by 4 and 3.

SHEPPARD'S CRUSHING WIN
There is no denying the ability of A. G. Sheppard, the 17-year-old son of the professional at the Hawkstone Park Club, Shrewsbury. A sturdily-built youth with a full swing kept under perfect control, he crushed his opponent, Colin Jackson, a local player, to the extent of 7 and 6.

Playing beautifully, Sheppard won five of the six holes. He astonished the members of Moortown by reaching the first hole with a drive and a No. 4 iron.

"Quite improper, I call it," said a spectator when Sheppard's putt for a three popped and out of the hole.

B. Williamson, also the son of a professional, E. Williamson, of Wollaton Park, Nottingham, played extremely well. He was out in 38 against a scratch score of 37—good going in the difficult conditions. He beat L. D. Cumming, one of the scratch boys international, by 4 and 2.

Among the "dark horses" the one who impressed me most was R. L. Burles, of Aldenham.

Madar usually got in at least one of his woods and Munro got a few good shots. For the losers, Coates was the most consistent player, but he fell down on the last end when he was most wanted. Beer started fairly well but finished up very weak. Basa also was very feeble. Omar, whilst he played better than the day previous, was not the Omar of old.

The Scores:—
Shanghai—A. A. Malcolm (skip) T. G. Main, J. Munro, F. O. Madar 18.

Hong Kong.—U. M. Omar (skip) H. Beer, R. Basa, A. E. Coates 17.

The scores:—
Hankow v. Shanghai
Hankow.—E. Owen (skip) W. J. Crooks, A. R. Elsenhut, W. Cameron Wood 19.

Shanghai.—E. Thurgood (skip) G. N. Manley, J. Brandley, W. T. Manley 18.

ART & DRAMA

MORE FUN WITH THE NAVY

Film Star's Stage Debut
CHINA STATION FARCE

London. With the production of "Admirals All" the Shaftesbury comes into its own again. Ian Hay and Stephen King-Hall have shown us twice already at this theatre what a way they have with the Navy, and the new play is up to standard.

When it has been bricked up a bit—last night's performance was rather ragged, for some reason—it will make an excellent light entertainment.

There is a real admiral in the story—Commander-in-Chief of the China Squadron, no less—and two false ones. The first of these is a Chinese brigand who kidnaps all the other characters. The second is the Commander-in-Chief's faithful coxswain, who impersonates his lord in order to bamboozle the brigand, and only succeeds in making trouble all round.

There is also a film star with whom all the admirals, genuine and imitation, are infatuated. Round her most of the ingeniously complicated plot centres. It is all very bright and very breezy, and the only thing which prevents it from being as good as "The Middle Watch" is that the characters, especially the minor ones, are drawn with less wealth of comic invention.

However, the two most important parts, those of the Admiral and his coxswain, are in the safe hands of Clive Currie and Aubrey Mather. Both these accomplished comedians are in fine form, and are very well backed up by Jack Hobbs as the third, or Chinese, admiral.

Playing the Film Star The film-star is played by a real film-star from Hollywood in Laura la Plante, who adds her name to the not very long list of movie-actresses who can be attractive on the stage. She is not called upon to do very much acting, but she has a cheerful and unaffected personality.

Diana Beaumont and Geoffrey Summer, as a millionaire's daughter and a love-sick Flag-Lieutenant, carry out their job of getting engaged to one another very pleasantly, while the Navy's more ordinary duties are being looked after smartly by Edward Harben, Terence Downing and John Eastwood.

Ernest Jay appears from time to time as a millionaire manufacturer of woollen underwear. The authors appear to have forgotten to give him anything to do, though; which is a waste, for Mr. Jay can be funny.

Frederick Burtwell is luckier. He has two parts to play, and differentiates them very cleverly.

SHAKESPEARE FOR HOLLYWOOD

Preparations For The "Dream"

SEATS FOR 20,000

Felix Weissberger, who was Reinhardt's assistant producer in "Helen," states that he is making preparations for Reinhardt's festival production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," which is going to open in the Hollywood Bowl on September 10.

He says: "The shell will be removed and a large hill created. Mighty oak trees and approximately a thousand square feet of lawn will be put on this artificial hill. These will replace the beautiful natural setting we enjoyed so much at Oxford."

Mr. Weissberger adds that there will be a seating capacity of 20,000 in the Hollywood Bowl, which will almost certainly be the biggest audience for a Shakespearean comedy. After a limited season there the production goes to Berkeley, where it will be played in the University grounds. The last part of the play is to be given in the Greek Theatre, also in the grounds, and the cast, the orchestra, and the whole audience of 5,000 will be moved. Reinhardt tried this experiment in Salzburg and Florence.

Finally the comedy will be staged in the new Opera House in San Francisco. Reinhardt is negotiating for a cast of star actors and actresses; the chief dancer will be Ninl Thelade, who on Monday made her last appearance at the Open Air Theatre for this season.

The late President Paul von Hindenburg, of Germany, is here seen visiting an orphanage where he was popularly known as "Papa" Hindenburg.

COMIC EPILOGUE ON THE DROUGHT

End Of Old Stagers' Season

PAGEANT PLAYERS PARODIED

Canterbury. According to their pleasant custom, the Old Stagers finished their season here with their own two special functions, one public and one private.

The first was the topical Epilogue which comes after the last performance of the last play; the second was the supper which succeeds the Epilogue and—for those fortunate enough to be present—brings the official social activities of Canterbury Week to an end.

The supper is generally followed by an impromptu sing-song and variety entertainment, which goes on till nearly dawn, and is the most joyous entertainment of all.

Here the Old Stagers' traditional talent for happy-go-lucky fooling is seen at its best. Usually the same talent inspires the Epilogue, and turns actors and audience into a huge family party.

Somehow, at this year's Epilogue, "When in Drought, or, Nineteen-Thirty-Four Ward," the jokes did not seem to be going quite so well as usual. This is probably the fault of the world in general, which during the year, just gone by seems to have failed to supply Major A. Ratcliffe-Ellis with any very promising material for his satire. Politically coloured shirts, the Drought, and the Larwood controversy were all obvious topics, and were duly dealt with. But it is to be noticed that the "hits" of the evening were the episodes in which the author had drawn on his own invention rather than on passing events for his inspiration.

Truth's Well Dried Up

Humphrey Tilling and Renee de Vaux, for instance, roused the audience to great enthusiasm as a pair of players who, wandering from pageant to pageant, had got considerably mixed in their minds as to what characters they were supposed to be.

Major A. Clarke-Jervoise also had a great success as Truth, whose only reason for being present was that her residential well had dried up in the drought.

As for Ralph Alderson, as a devastating outside edition of Little Lord Fauntleroy, the cue for his entry was quite ecstatically far fetched.

Jessie Winter and H. Wilson Wiley, as a pair of balloon-sellers, were not so lucky in their material, and Thea Holme had little more to do than look in and provoke one of the author's best puns—spoken, you notice, with a lip:

And whosoever she may chance to roam
We all are overjoyed to cheer her home!

And so to the traditional entrance of the Spirits of the Week—of Kent (Mrs. A. P. F. Chapman), of I Zingari (Phyllis Marchant), and of Old Stagers (Lady Crutchley), and the end of one more Canterbury Week.

Where next year's plays will be done is doubtful, for the St. George's Theatre will almost certainly not be available. Lord Harris promised, in his speech before the Epilogue, that they would be done in a tent if necessary; but it is understood that a great many stones will be turned and avenues explored before things are allowed to come to that pass.

SIR HENRY WOOD RETURNS

American Compositions For The "Proms"

40TH SEASON OPENS

London. Sir Henry Wood recently arrived in London from a six weeks' tour of Canada and the United States. He started rehearsals at once for the fortieth annual season of the Queen's Hall Promenade Concerts.

He conducted eight successful concerts at the Hollywood "Bowl" within two weeks, and although it was his third visit here he said he was greatly impressed by the huge audiences and the unique auditorium.

"I wish we had a place like the 'Bowl' here, but our climate is unsuitable," said Sir Henry, who was accompanied by Lady Wood, on reaching Liverpool in the White Star liner Britannic. "The 'Bowl' is situated in natural surroundings, and the seating accommodation stretches for hundreds of feet up the hillside. My last concert there drew the best attendance there has been for over thirteen years. They have one of the finest symphony orchestras, consisting of 100 performers."

He added that during a tour of the South-Western States he was surprised at the singing of the hotel servants. "Waiters and chambermaids," he said, "have a better chance of getting a job if they can sing."

"I was amazed at a small country hotel to hear someone playing an Arnold Bax piano sonata with great skill. It proved to be a bell boy, who had been employed to entertain guests when not working."

Sir Henry has brought with him several American compositions, which include Mr. Deems Taylor's "Circus Day," "California Suite" by Converse, and the "Romantic" symphony by Dr. Howard Hanson, which he hopes to give during the Promenade season.

ROYAL INTEREST IN YORK THEATRE

Duke And Appeal

York. An effort by a number of drama-loving citizens of York to save the local theatre is attracting widespread interest. The Duke of York has written to the Lord Mayor commending the venture and expressing the hope that it may meet with success, and so "encourage other of our important cities to follow your good example."

The Princess Royal has promised to attend the theatre in October, whilst the Archbishop of York and Gen. Sir Alexander Wardrop, G.O.C.-in-C. Northern Command, have indicated their support.

The theatre is to be run as a civic service by unpaid directors, who are appealing for 2,500 citizens to subscribe for one pound share each. The shares will bear cumulative interest at the rate of five per cent. per annum, any surplus being put back into the theatre for the improvement of drama in the city.

BUDDHA'S BONE

Calcutta. A small piece of bone, believed to be a relic of Buddha, is to be presented to the Mahabodhi Society, Sarnath, Benares, by the Archaeological Survey of the Government of India. The relics were found in a Sind, where a Buddhist monastery, large mound at Mirpurkhas, in once stood.

GOVERNMENT AIDS FAMOUS THEATRE

Cradle of Viennese Operetta

NEW ERA HOPED FOR

In order to be able actively to further and control the development of theatrical affairs in Vienna, a new association was formed under the name of "Vienna Theatres" and Publishers' Holding Co., Ltd. The principal shareholders are the City of Vienna, the Federal Treasury of Austria and Director Hubert Marischka.

The purpose of this Company is to be preeminently the furtherance of the interests of the "Theatre an der Wien" which is able to look back upon a tradition extending over a period of more than 130 years. It has even been considered the cradle of the Viennese Operetta which, from there, started upon its triumphal march over the entire world. The same interest will be extended to the musical and theatrical publishing firm, J. Karczag, whose sole proprietor is Director Hubert Marischka.

The economic and artistic importance of the Marischka enterprises, which have proved to be a powerful attraction to foreign visitors, have determined the authorities to start this action. Its prime mover, up to the time of actual accomplishment, was Mayor Schmitz. It will be the task of the new company with its great financial power, to function in an advisory capacity, or, if need be, to furnish financial assistance. Thus it will be of great moral and practical help to the famous theatre and the hardly less famous publishing firm.

The "Theatre an der Wien" embodies the tradition of the best Viennese Operetta music. Most of the most famous composers were given an initial hearing there. From Beethoven and Mozart, the great masters of exalted art, to Franz Lehár, the chief exponent of modern operetta, a great many Austrians who carried the musical fame of Vienna to the four corners of the world, have started their career at that theatre. It is to be hoped that the generous attitude on the part of the authorities will introduce a new era of prosperity and tend further to increase the world-wide fame of Viennese music.

THE CHINESE THEATRE

Hey-Day Of Old Drama Slowly Passing

ROTARY ADDRESS BY MR. HONG SLING

"The Chinese Theatre," was the subject of an interesting talk by Rotarian H. Hong Sling, at the Rotary Club tiffin held at the Hong Kong Hotel yesterday. "It is inevitable that Chinese drama will be written with plots dealing with conditions existing in China, and treating with problems of more vital concern to the people than the ultimate outcome of Rome's love for Juliet. The hey-day of the old theatre has passed, and is slowly disappearing with the present generation," said Mr. Hong Sling.

Rotarian M. K. Lo presided, and Dr. J. C. Hoe, a graduate of Harvard and Professor of Political Science at the National University, Peking, was welcomed as a guest of the Club.

The R.M.S. Empress of Asia left Vancouver last Saturday and is due to arrive here on September 28. She will sail for Manila on the next day.

Nothing Equals 'ASPRO' for Dengue & Rheumatism

Dear Sirs,
Having used your 'ASPRO' for Dengue Fever and also for Rheumatism, I have found that nothing equals 'ASPRO' for relief from pain. I was very bad the last week in December, and could not sleep with Rheumatism in my legs. A neighbour called to see me, and she told me that 'ASPRO' Tablets were good for pain. I straightaway sent to the chemist for a box of 'ASPRO', and I can truthfully say that I was surprised at the relief I got after taking the first two 'ASPRO' Tablets—they took away the pain and I could sleep of a night. I took three Tablets a night for four nights, and they relieved me, and now I am as well as ever.
Yours faithfully,
(Sgt.) (Mrs.) FLORRIE LOVE.

'ASPRO' Works Wonders for Malaria

Gladstone, Queensland.
Gentlemen,
I think it is up to me to let you know how I have benefited by 'ASPRO'. Ever since 1919 I have been a sufferer by MALARIA FEVER, having contracted same in Rhodesia, German East Africa and the Straits Settlements. I came to Australia from the latter country five years ago, and for the first two and a half years was continually in hospital in Victoria and New South Wales. On arriving in Queensland, a friend advised me to try 'ASPRO'. I did, and it has worked wonders. I still continue to get slight attacks of Malaria, but if I take a few 'ASPRO' Tablets and hot lemon water, and rest a few hours, I am quite O.K. again. I would, be without 'ASPRO' for anything and always carry a box about with me. I can thoroughly recommend them to anyone suffering from the same malady. This testimonial is unsolicited and you may make any use of it that you think fit.
Yours faithfully,
L. de B. HAY-COCHLAN.

NEW STRAUSS OPERA

First Performance At Covent Garden

DRESDEN'S OBJECTION

It is probable that Richard Strauss's latest opera, "The Silent Woman," will be given for the first time during the spring season at Covent Garden.

Dresden, where most Strauss operas have had their first performance, raised objections to the production on account of the Jewish origin of Strauss's collaborator, Dr. Stefan Zweig, who has written the libretto.

This famous Austrian novelist has been staying in London. Before returning to Salzburg he told how many years ago, during his first London visit, he discovered Ben Jonson, and adapted "Volpone" for the German stage. Then he found "The Silent Woman," which seemed eminently adapted for musical treatment, and submitted its text to Strauss, who, delighted with the work, set at once to compose music for it.

"I have heard," he said, "some part of Strauss's music. It is altogether different in style and character from his other operas. It comes much nearer to the opera buffa and to the spirit of Mozart. I believe 'The Silent Woman' will surprise his many admirers; and may come to be ranked above all he has so far achieved."

The 22nd Somali left Shanghai yesterday, and is due to arrive here on Friday morning.

RETURN OF AN EXILE

Persistent rumour says that Abd-el-Krim, deposed and exiled eight years ago after his long defiance of the French and Spanish forces in Morocco, is now to return so that he may "exert a good influence" over his countrymen.

Abd-el-Krim was a good loser. He set out to exile on the Island of Reunion assuring everybody that he bore no resentment against the French.

The French gallantly replied by allowing him a pension—very welcome in view of his depleted resources and expensive habit of smoking English cigarettes—an interpreter, and five first-class and three second-class cabins in the liner which took him, his four wives, their children and 20 servants to Reunion.

He had a quarrel with a general; the general boxed his ears; and Abd-el-Krim the rebel was born. Later he captured the general in battle, and took liberal revenge by having him beheaded.

PLASTIC SURGERY PROGRESS ONE GOOD LEGACY OF THE WAR

NOW AN EXACT SCIENCE

(By A. P. Luscombe Whyte.)

London. PLASTIC surgery is the Cinderella of the medical sciences. Its line of mental association to the average man is: Face lifting—beauty parlours—quack doctors—extravagant feminine vanity. Or even. Disguise—furniture operations—crooks—Dillinger.

Which is all very unfair. For plastic surgery is taking a giant's share in lifting the burden of pain, disfigurement and despair which still saddles the world.

Professor de Martel, the famous French abdominal surgeon, is not the man to sponsor an upstart science. Yet he says: "In ten or fifteen years plastic surgery will be the most important branch of surgery." A British authority has predicted that in a decade it will be as popular (sic) and common as dentistry.

The theory is not new. Over 2,000 years ago Eastern surgeons had methods which were curiously similar. In the sixteenth century Italian doctors recorded scores of successful skin-graft operations. By 1697 the first text book on the new science had been written by Tagliacozzi.

But war really created plastic surgery. It was one of War's few useful products.

In 1918 the ebb of war left a scattered wreckage of tens of thousands of mangled and shapeless living horrors. They formed the raw material for the questing knives of the plastic surgeons. In obscure hospitals this sub-human residue of misplaced energy was built up month by month into men who could once more face their friends without the dread of averted eyes.

Chief among these hospitals was the Hospital for Facial Injuries at Sidcup, where that great surgeon, Sir Harold Gillies, worked. Here 19,000 men were made whole. And here many of the plastic surgeons of to-day learned their delicate art.

Its successes were almost incredible. One Canadian officer, away at Cambrai. Months of work built him a new jaw. Half of another man's face was destroyed. It was re-created inch by inch. Even his eye-brows were re-built. Scores of men were given new features. Thousands of deep scars were erased.

Invaluable Work
"Men with jaws and faces smashed to shapeless pulp have been re-created in human form." (I quote a Ministry of Pensions doctor). "The value and wonder of this work cannot be expressed in words."

To-day plastic surgery—the building up of destroyed parts of the body with skin, bone and cartilage and nerves taken from another part—is repairing the wreckage of the industrial war. Here is a typical example. A chemical worker was terribly burned with acid. It had eaten away most of the skin on his face and eroded the flesh beneath.

A plastic surgeon took up the case. He gave the man a local anaesthetic—mixed with adrenalin to stop bleeding—and removed the damaged skin. Over his face he spread a liquid preparation which hardened into a pliable mask and formed a pattern of the damaged area. He stretched the pattern over the unharmed skin on the chest and delicately cut out a large area of skin of full thickness.

This skin made a new face. Stretched over the burnt flesh it was stitched to the untouched borders. It grew there, and took up its home like a transplanted tree. Its blood vessels searched out and connected with the veins and arteries. The faint scars of the joints vanished, and the man is working again. Many parts of the body will yield the thin sheet of skin needed by most operations and renew themselves in a month. Even the full depth of skin can be taken if the source is covered with a thin layer from elsewhere.

Pioneer Work

The early surgeons could transplant only small areas of skin. But the discovery of an American doctor helped to increase the scope. He found that transplanted skin grew healthily when it was subjected after transplantation to a uniform pressure. The pressure, he explained, shut off the outside supply of blood and left the graft to settle down in its own blood and lymph serum. Meanwhile, its own tiny blood vessels were pushing their way like minute plant roots to join the main stream of circulation.

Plastic surgery is striding further ahead every year. Where once its disciples played hesitantly with slips of skin they are now taking skin, bone, cartilage nerves and with them building new features, new faces.

Surgeons have cured nerves paralysis. One patient could not move the muscles of his face. He was apparently condemned to life-long pokerface misery. The surgeons decided in desperation to try a nerve graft.

They opened the thigh, fished a length of unimportant nerve and connected it, as a length of wire is connected to a broken telephone cable, to the ends of the facial nerve. The connection worked. Within thirty days the patient could move his face. After some months he had a normal control of expression.

The heroism of research workers has done much to make these nerve grafts possible. Dr. Henry Head, late neurologist to London Hospital, deliberately had certain nerves of his left arm severed in order to study the effect. He carried on with his routine work meanwhile.

New Woman Built
I knew a girl who was injured in a car accident. Her jaw was pitifully smashed, her face terribly burnt. Her life also seemed to be in ashes.

Plastic surgery built a new woman. With infinite patience the surgeons took a rib and carved it, section by section, into a new jaw-bone. They took skin from the leg and created eyelids and nostrils. They borrowed flesh from the chest to fill in the lips and mouth, and cartilage from the leg to rebuild the nose. They even created eyebrows from the scalp. In all 25 grafts, each placed with exquisite precision, were necessary to build up a face again.

CORRESPONDENCE

NULAH MURDER CASE

[To the Editor, "China Mail"]

Sir,—After returning the verdict of "guilty" the special jury strongly recommended mercy. No one except members of the Special Jury know on what grounds, they had recommended mercy, but I am personally satisfied that such recommendation would not have been made without careful consideration. The jury did not return their verdict there and then, but retired and deliberated for nearly two hours—and the length of time they took to deliver their verdict certainly suggest that this was not a case where there was a preponderant amount of evidence on one side or the other, but a case of great difficulty.

This strongly is my argument in support of the recommendation. The convicted prisoner is, I understand, a poor man. He has not the means of rousing public feelings in his favour, but none-the-less, deserves equally all the consideration that the Authority can give him.

I trust that the recommendation of mercy, especially from a special jury, will not be overlooked.

THREE PEAK RESIDENTS SUMMONED FOR MAKING TOO MUCH NOISE

MAN AND WOMAN IN BOAT BRAWL

All Over 20 Cents To Buy Opium

For striking his sister-in-law Li Ah Mui, a 51-year-old boatkeeper, with a sampan rowlock, because she refused to give him twenty cents to buy opium, Kwok Ho, a 45-year-old unemployed was fined $25, in default one month's imprisonment, by Mr. J. B. H. Lee at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning.

Sub-Inspector Watt stated that the defendant had been obtaining money from the woman for a long time, but on this occasion he was refused, so he picked up the rowlock which was lying near-by and struck her on the head, she immediately picked up a pole and struck him under the left eye, cutting him rather badly.

Li Ah Mui, the complainant was bound over in a sum of $25 for a period of six months.

"BOURGEOIS" TYPE OF SPORT

Soviet To Compete In Future

Moscow.

The Soviet has decided to take a new step and champion teams from European countries are to be invited to compete with Soviet athletes.

Heretofore the Soviet has ignored all "bourgeois" teams, as they were called, for being "products of capitalism." Only working class teams were invited.

But now Soviet sport is advanced enough to want to try its metal against more skilled material. The Czechoslovakian champion soccer team will be the first invited.

Sport moguls here are also considering the question of whether or not they should hire British coaches to help along Soviet sport. Offers from several British coaches are said to have been received already.

The authorities state, "We are not interested in making records. Our aim is to attract as many people as possible into sport and improve its quality. Therefore we will probably invite some foreign experts to come here and help us."

WIRELESS JANGLE DEMONSTRATION

B.B.C. Gives Lesson In Consideration

A novel method was adopted by the B.B.C. last month to emphasize their appeal to the listening public to be more considerate with the use of loud-speakers, out of doors and near open windows.

Two electrical records of a speech and a popular dance band were played together at the microphone to illustrate the effect to two different programmes heard at the same time.

"A good many people are forced to listen to confused things of this kind, because their neighbours on one side want one programme and those on the other want another," said the announcer after the brief demonstration.

"May we appeal once more to listeners, especially in towns, about loud-speakers working near open windows and out of doors."

B.B.C. OFFICIAL SHOCKED

Stockingless Typist Causes Furor

A pair of highly placed eyebrows rose in horror at Broadcasting House the other day.

A sight had shocked an official. The result was the issue of this memorandum to the staff:—

"However hot the weather, female staff may not come to Broadcasting House without stockings."

The offender had taken advantage of a notice issued to the staff last year that "in view of the extremely hot weather female staff may wear appropriate dress."

But she should have known that, darling, sir, there are limits.

To-day's Short Story.

THE BARGAIN

By Tomlinson Wright

It was the opening day of Ashbridge Cricket Week, and a promising young amateur, who had seemed to be settling down so nicely, had just thrown away his wicket. To the tune of "Less Than The Dust," he came striding pinkly back into the pavilion.

"Bad luck, old boy," said a rather familiar member.

"Bad luck be handed!" said the disgruntled young man. "It's that confounded band."

He passed on into the dressing-room, followed by several, puzzled glances. A stout member peeping out of the pavilion bar was by no means baffled, however. He had repeatedly heard hard things said about the band by players at cricket festivals.

"I wonder if all music upsets him," he remarked, "or if it is just that he dislikes that particular tune?"

"Why should he?" inquired his companion, a small inquisitive man.

"Because, my dear sir, it may be associated with some painful episode in his past. With an unhappy love affair, perhaps, or his old nanna's knee. In the case of R. S. V. P. Masters, a certain tune always took him back to one of the bleaker steps of Russia."

"You mean the Masters who played for Eastshire?"

"I do," acknowledged the stout member. "His is a most significant story, illustrating the ease with which this cricket festival music may be exploited by the unscrupulous."

Few people are aware (he said) that in his Varsity days Rodney Masters was that unusual combination a cricket "Blue" and a world reformer. Little did they dream who saw him in action at Fenner's or Lord's that in an hour or two's time this orphan lad would be passionately denouncing all enemies of Bolshevism.

But boys will be boys, and when his Uncle Harcastle, one of the canniest men on the Manchester

EMPIRE'S BIGGEST TELESCOPE

Canada's Monster At Dunlap

MEMORIAL TO MINER

Toronto.

When the new Dunlap Observatory is opened at Richmond Hill, north of Toronto, shortly, it will contain what is claimed to be the biggest telescope in the British Empire.

The observatory is being given to the University of Toronto by Mrs. D. A. Dunlap as a memorial to her late husband, a prominent Canadian mining man.

The dome and building are practically completed and part of the telescope is now being put in position. An English telescope firm has had charge of the main reflector which will soon be installed.

The weight of the telescope and its 74-inch reflector is about 50 tons and the weight of the steel dome about 80 tons.

The dome is carried on 24 cantilevered rollers of 27 inch diameter, mounted in ball bearings and running on a rail. Sixteen pairs of lateral roller bearings on the inner and outer edge of the rail keep the dome in position. Two segmental platforms, the lower one at the base of the opening and the upper one at the back sixteen feet higher, are fixed inside the dome.

GAVE AWAY MONEY IN STREETS

Drunken Donor Hauled To Court

A man charged at Bow Street Police Court with being drunk and disorderly was said to have tried to give away 10s. notes in the street. He had 33 10s. on him. "Well, here's your opportunity," said Mr. Dummett, the Magistrate. "Pay a fine of 10s."

Cotton Exchange, sent him over for a spell to the land of his dreams, young Rodney soon got the poison out of his system. He came back several weeks before his time and settled down chastely to play sound stuff for Eastshire.

Here it was, in the county of his birth, that he met Robina Drake. He was fielding just in front of the ladies' pavilion at Eastchester that afternoon, and a lofty pull for six sent him backing on to the rails in a conscientious endeavour to take a catch. He took instead a backward somersault that landed him, physically and metaphorically, at Robina's feet.

A less well-bred girl would doubtless have murmured, "Come up and see me sometime?" Robina merely implied by an upward sweep of her long lashes that twenty years of life had offered several far less pleasurable surprises. It followed that, shortly after close of play, her two-seater developed carburettor trouble just round the back of the pavilion.

TO-MORROW'S STORY

To-morrow's story will be "The House That Was Dark," by Dewan Sharar.

"I say," exclaimed Rodney, emerging fresh and spruce from a shower and a change, "can I help at all?"

"Do you know anything about carburettors?" she asked him.

"Well," he said pointedly, "I know enough not to tinker about with the contact-breaker."

Whereupon they both laughed, and each privately decided that life would never be quite the same again.

However, there were destined to be snags. For one thing, Rodney had only about a couple of hundred a year apart from what his Uncle Harcastle was very concerned at the moment about his piece-goods.

Then there was Sutton Westerham. A poisonous son of a share-pusher this, whom Robina had met at some drag-hunt or other and who had pursued her with the relentlessness of the born hunter ever since.

There could be no doubt, too, that old man Drake was strongly pro-Westerham. Unless Rodney was very much mistaken, the pair were engaged in dark financial dealings which might well lead to a mortgage with Robina callously unloaded on the market to prevent a foreclosure.

"Angel-face, don't be so Edwardian!" laughed the girl, to whom he confided his fears one evening.

"Do I look the sort to be bought and sold like so much kine?"

"Not quite like so much kine, perhaps," he admitted, "but what worries me is, they might put the pity-you-poor-old-father stuff over on you."

At this point the radio went over to the Volga Boatman's Song, and with twisted features Rodney hastened across to silence the thing.

"Leave it on," demurred Robina. "I rather like it."

"No!" he said, almost fiercely. "Anything—anything—but that!"

"You seem to feel very strongly about the tune, Masters," remarked a smooth voice from the doorway.

"I wonder why?"

Rodney glowered round at the Westerham pest.

"Because it has painful memories for me," he grated. "It gets all in among me and makes me want to howl like a wolf."

"A Russian wolf, no doubt?" smiled Westerham.

INDIANS WITHOUT PASSPORTS

To Be Deported Back To India

George Kebart, a Hindu, and Hari Singh, a Sikh, were charged before Mr. E. W. Hamilton at the Central Magistracy this morning with entering the Colony without a valid passport.

It was stated that Kebart came to the Colony from Macao, where he was dismissed from the Municipal Bank last month, and since then he has been without employment.

Singh, a former watchman, came to the Colony in 1930, and was recently dismissed by his employers. Both defendants gave themselves up to the Police as destitutes.

Both defendants were remanded to the Detention House, pending arrangements to send them back to India.

EARTH COOLIE ROBBED

Two Young Unemployed Gaoled For Theft

Two young unemployed man, Chan Wah and Wong Yau, were charged before Mr. Q. A. A. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy this morning, with the theft of a purse containing $2.80, the property of So Sam, an earth coolie, at the Praya yesterday.

Evidence showed that Chan Wah did, the actual purse, extracting from complainant's pocket, while Wong Yau acted as accomplice by jostling the complainant on one side.

Chan Wah, who is 17 years old, and who had one previous police conviction, was sentenced to four months' hard labour, while Wong was sentenced to two months' hard labour.

FIRE AT WEDDING PARTY

They Saved The Cake With Cinders On It

Mr. Arthur Pilcher and his bride arranged to hold their wedding reception in the parish hall in the little Kentish village of East Langdon, near Deal.

It was in flames. The villagers ran into the hall to salvage the feast.

They rescued the cake, covered with cinders. The wedding breakfast took place in a barn.

WHAT HAPPENS TO RADIO WAVES

Tracked 100 Miles Above The Earth

FILMED FOR OLYMPIA SHOW

A year's progress in the swiftly developing science of radio was epitomised at the largest British exhibition of its kind ever held at Olympia. Sets on the 300 stands ranged from the world's smallest portable to £150 radio-gramophones. The Magic Circle of Radio, otherwise the Radio Research Board, which deals in the higher mysteries of the science, made its first experiment in showmanship. Its work, usually expounded in Blue Books, was explained simply to the public in an exhibit called the "Radio Weather House."

Here, through talking films and demonstrations, the visitor saw what happens to wireless waves a hundred miles or more above the earth and how this affects broadcasting. The exhibit earned its name because the atmosphere may be likened to a house of many storeys. The ground floor is the ordinary weather layer, and the home of our friends the anti-cyclone and the deep depression. The first floor is the stratosphere which the balloonist strives to reach; the next the ozonosphere which he cannot visit.

Skyscraper Storeys

Far away in the skyscraper storeys is the ionosphere, the home of the Aurora Borealis, and where, owing to the action of the sun's rays, radio waves are turned back to earth instead of flying off into space. The radio weather of these upper storeys settles how good distant listening will be and how bad fading. Experts of the Radio Research Board are the explorers of the upper air. They are mapping these distant regions, and the knowledge so obtained is invaluable in the development of radio communications.

Visitors saw by talking film how that super electric pencil, the cathode ray oscillograph, has been used to explore the radio roof of the world. Working models showed how fading takes place and how the heights of the reflecting regions are measured. Another model showed how the cathode ray oscillograph has been embodied in a "collision preventer" for use during fog at sea. The visitor was taken to the chart room of S.S. Olympia and to see the indications to a ship which is heading for a collision and to one which is not.

BRIDE OF 74 DANCES A JIG

"This is one of the many hundreds of mui-tais of whom we have lost trace, owing to their change of address," said Inspector Fraser, of the S. C. A., when prosecuting Mak Shi, of No. 69 Southwall Road, at the Kowloon Magistracy to-day, for failing to report her change of address.

He also stated that the defendant lived in No. 4 Morrison Hill Road until two years ago when all trace of her was lost.

Mr. J. B. H. Lee imposed a fine of $10.

LICENSE FOR SALE OF FRUIT

SANITARY BOARD MEETING

A motion that a sub-committee comprising Dr. J. M. Gray, Medical Officer of Health; Mr. L. C. F. WARNINGS UNHEEDED

COMPLAINANTS NOT DIVULGED IN THE COURT

9.15 P.M. To 1.50 A.M. Nuisance

HEARING ON FRIDAY

"This case would not have appeared before Your Worship, had the defendants paid some regard to two previous Police warnings," said Mr. T. H. King, Deputy Inspector-General of Police, who appeared before Mr. E. W. Hamilton at the Central Magistracy this morning for the prosecution on a summons against three Colony residents, Messrs. G. W. Sewell, H. C. Meekie and A. L. Sullivan, of No. 286, The Peak, for committing a nuisance by making or permitting a noise to be made, calculated to disturb, or interfere with public tranquillity, between sunset and 6 a.m. on August 31.

Mr. D. B. Evans, of Messrs. Johnson, Stokes and Master, pleaded not guilty on behalf of defendants, and asked for a day to be fixed for hearing the case.

Mr. King said that the evidence in the case will be that on the occasion in question the noise began at 9.15 p.m. and was continued at various intervals until 1.50 a.m. next morning. He added that the case would not have been brought to court had the defendants paid attention to two police warnings.

Mr. Evans asked for the names of the complainants, in order that he may subpoena them for the hearing.

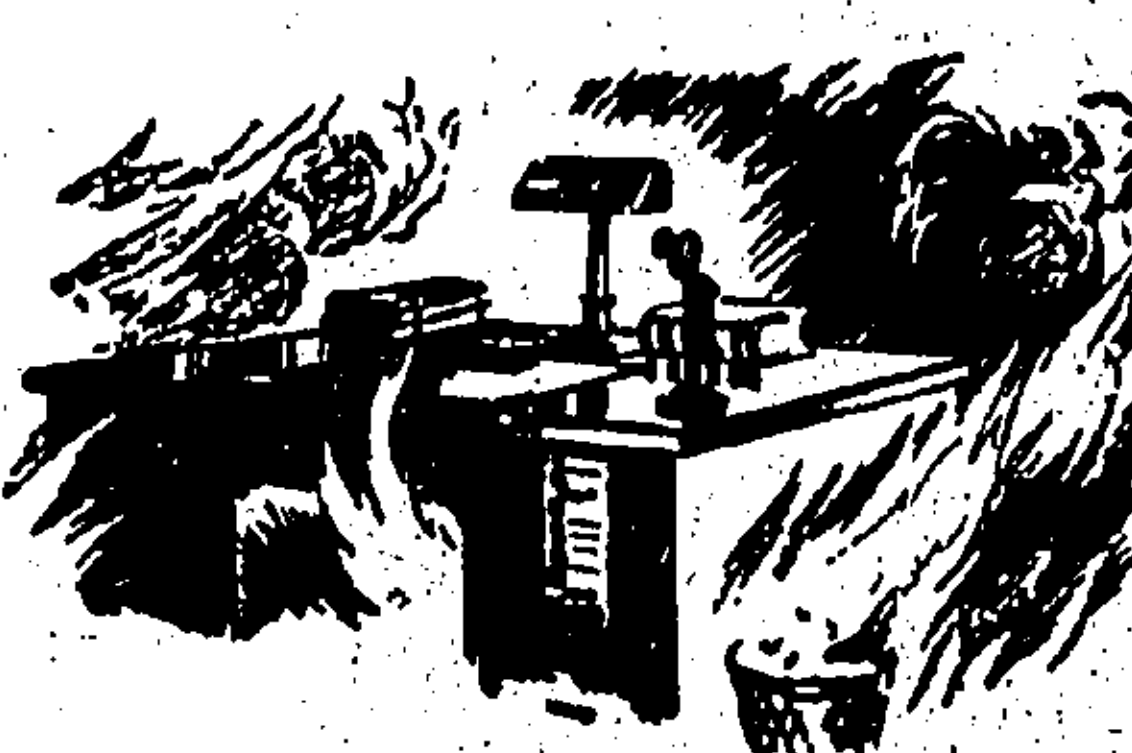

Mr. King replied that he did not think he was called upon to disclose the names of the complainants.

The hearing was fixed for Friday morning.

P.W.D. LAND BAILIFF CHARGED

Alleged Assault On Chinese Woman

CHINESE INTERPRETER INVOLVED

Mr. William Gordon Routley, land bailiff, attached to the Public Works Department, was summoned before Mr. J. B. H. Lee at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday for assaulting Mrs. Lam Yuet-fong, at Po Kong village on July 20.

Mrs. Lam Yuet-fong was represented by Mr. Peter Sin, Mr. Routley, who pleaded not guilty, conducted his own defence.

The prosecution alleges that the defendant without any justifiable cause, assaulted the complainant Lam Yuet-fong by hitting her on the right leg with a piece of stone. The prosecution would call evidence to show that the complainant had a bruise and several abrasions on the right leg consistent with the stone throwing.

It would be also alleged that prior to July 20, defendant, accompanied by his interpreter, Tse Fook, visited complainant three times. During one of these occasions, it is alleged that Tse Fook asked complainant for $80 tea money.

Mr. Sin did not suggest that Mr. Routley had anything to do with demanding tea money from the woman.

$40,200,000 PAID FOR CINEMAS

Exchequer Benefits By $5,700,000

BRITISH ASSOCIATION REPORT

London, To-day.

Figures relating to the cinematograph business in Great Britain, given at the British Association meeting at Aberdeen yesterday, revealed that the public paid $40,200,000 for admission to British cinemas last year, and paid entertainment tax revenue amounting to $5,700,000.

Of the 476 imported films registered for distribution in Britain during the year, remittances to the United States in respect of 330 of them, representing 90 to 95 per cent of the value of the total imports, amounted to $5,300,000.

It was a nasty smile, and Rodney did not like it. He was convinced that if the pest's moustache had been long enough he would have twirled it. It all looked most sinister to him.

A week or two went by and, surprisingly enough, despite the persistent uneasiness of his mind, Rodney showed no loss of cricket form. On the contrary, he knocked up a couple of hundreds in successive games, thereby getting his name freely mentioned in terms of the next Test.

The England side was by no means rich in all-rounders, argued the cricket correspondents, and R. S. V. P. Masters, besides being a steady, reliable bat, was a useful spin bowler on a damaged wicket. Why not find a place for him in the fourth Test at Old Trafford?

"Won't it be marvellous if they do give you a show at Manchester?" do give you a show at Manchester?" enthused Robina, ten days or so before the event.

"Marvellous," he agreed absently. "Which reminds me, we're due up there on Wednesday again Lancashire, and I've been thinking. Piece-goods or no piece-goods, I'm going to tackle Uncle Hardcastle. Hardcastle Ramsbotham was a man of moods, and Rodney realised he would need to choose his moment with care. However, a pleasant surprise awaited him on the Wednesday. Returning to the pavilion undefeated at lunch with a useful 51 to his credit, he found the fellow holding out both hands to him.

"Magnificent, lad—magnificent!" he beamed, bundling him into the bar. "I'm proud of you. What are you going to have?"

"Nothing, thanks, before lunch," said Rodney, and smiled nervously. "I was afraid you wouldn't be too pleased."

"Why not?"

"Well, you don't usually like to see runs made against Lancashire. Aren't you backing them for the championship this year?"

Hardcastle Ramsbotham raised his glass with dignity. "There are times when we must put our country first. You are running strongly for a place in the England side up here on Saturday week, and all I want is to see you get it. As a matter of fact," he added, in an undertone, "I've backed you to."

"You shouldn't have done that."

"Well, I have. I was cracking you up to one of our brokers in here just now, and, between you and me, lad, I've been a bit rash. It'll cost me a couple of mills if I lose. You wouldn't like to see that happen?"

"No. But—"

"But what?"

"I was just thinking," Rodney said, and smiled. "There's one thing I want, uncle, even more than a place in the England side. If we go carefully it shouldn't run me into more than another couple of hundred a year—representing a capital of, say, five thousand. Are your two mills worth as much as that?"

"Never mind," grunted Ramsbotham. "What's the big idea?"

Rodney glanced up at the clock. "I must get in to lunch now," he said. "Call round for me after close of play. Just give me time to change and forget my amateur status, and we'll talk business."

The Old Trafford game was washed out on the Friday morning, and Rodney was able to get in a full evening down at Eastchester before the opening of the seaside Eastcliff Festival on the morrow.

As usual, Sutton Westerham was clattering up the Drake homestead, and never had the pest seemed more tenacious. It was well after dinner before Rodney succeeded in getting Robina to "himself" long enough to tell her the good news from the north.

There had been no cloudbursts down here, and the garden was bathed in moonlight. On a rustic seat, discreetly screened by the rhododendrons, the clinging girl heard all.

"So," she murmured presently, "the money's as good as in the bank?"

"Well, I wouldn't put it quite like that," demurred Rodney. "I've got to be selected for the Test, you know."

"You will be."

"I might not. After all, I didn't do so much up at Manchester. A mere fifty-odd and a couple of dearish wickets."

"Who cares? It's in to-night's paper they're going to watch you over at Eastcliff."

"Yes. Everything hangs on that. If I can only knock up a few tomorrow—!" He sighed. "Once we're married we need never see that weevil Westerham again."

At this point a queer grinding noise behind them caused Robina to clasp his arm even more tightly.

"What was that?" she breathed.

"Only a bull-frog or something calling to its mate," he smiled.

But he was wrong. It was Sutton Westerham gnashing his teeth in the rhododendrons.

You may well imagine the sequel. Men of Westerham's stamp do not go about smiling sinister smiles for nothing, and all this time the fellow had been hugging to his breast the knowledge that, placed within earshot of the Volga Boatman's song, R. S. V. P. Masters promptly came unstuck and wanted to howl like a wolf.

From the first he had seen that such knowledge might well stand him in good stead in bringing about the discomfiture of his cricketing rival. But never, even in his wildest glottings, had he dreamed that so much might hang upon the success or failure of a single innings.

It followed that he left the rhododendrons in high glee and was among the first to click a bunting-festooned turnstile at the Eastcliff ground next morning. Learning later, to his satisfaction, that Eastshire had won the toss and were taking first knock, he hastened along to the band dais.

"Oh, bandmaster," he began, "I wonder if you would do me a favour? You have the Volga Boatman's song in your repertoire, I suppose?"

"We have 'God Save the King,' too, sir," said the bandmaster.

"Quite, quite," smiled Westerham. "Well, I wonder if you would be good enough to play it for me some time to-day? The boat song, I mean? I am expecting a Russian lady who is very fond of it. I'll let you know when she comes...."

Here the stout member paused for further refreshment, and his small, inquisitive companion would not let him finish.

"Did the bandmaster play it?" he demanded.

"Yes," he was told, "but not until Rodney, going in as usual first wicket down, had been nervously scraping for runs for nearly half an hour. The band had, meantime, completed a session and dispersed, as such bands will, for a lengthy interval."

"What happened when they did play it?"

The stout member smiled.

"The young man promptly forgot his tedious over-anxiety to please the yawning selectors," he said. "He flashed out savagely, took every sort of risk, and knocked up a hundred in something like record time. It was just the innings to win a bribe. Test between cloudbursts, and the selectors rose to it as one man."

Market Factors
Messrs. S. E. Levy & Co. received the following telegram through Reuter:—

Favourable factors before the market were:—The turning of the tide in steel-mill activity is encouraging; at the same time, the small amount of improvement is construed as indicating that the Autumn business recovery will proceed very slowly.

Unfavourable factors were:—Selling activity continues to expand on setbacks. The lowering of prices for goods on the Stock Exchange is attributed to disappointment over the failure of the market to spin into an inflation boom.

Night Telegrams
The following telegrams were received through Reuter by Messrs. S. E. Levy & Co. last night:—

The net profit of the Kennecott Copper Corp. for the first six months totalled $3,888,000, equivalent to 36 cents per share.

A message from Washington states that Secretary Henry Morgenthau described the new Treasury offerings as "going satisfactorily."

The market is moderately active and somewhat irregular, but the trend is chiefly lower. The penetration of the recent resistance levels has unsettled sentiment and, with mining issues again under pressure, — U. S. Smelting shares falling three points—a further moderate reactionary tendency seems to be indicated.

A seat on the Stock Exchange was sold for $76,000, a decline of $2,000 from the price paid for the previous seat.

The Standard Oil Co. of India has reduced gasoline prices up to 2 cents a gallon throughout its territory, comprising 11 States.

The Mack Truck Co. has declared its regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents per share.

E. A. Pierce Co.'s Report.
In their market report, the American Oriental Finance Corporation, correspondent for Messrs. E. A. Pierce and Company New York state:

"Stocks: Without any important constructive news we think further irregularity is probable.

"Wheat: Offerings were light, after early easiness, due to the Bureau Report below private estimates. The Report, however, was bullish. The cash situation remains the strong and principal factor. The domestic and other grain markets were strong.

"Cotton: There was persistent Trade buying but foreign, domestic and outside interests were small. Hedging was light and the basis continues strong. The market acts well.

"Rubber: The market was quiet but steady, with good support at around 16 cents for December. Dealers and a ring of operators continue bullish and we look for higher prices."—Reuter.

Amusements Cinema Notes

"GLAMOUR"—KING'S THEATRE

The story of fame as a wicked enemy to happy marriage, and a ruthless destroyer of family life is now being unfolded at the King's Theatre, in Universal's production, "Glamour."

The opening scene shows the heroine, played by Constance Cummings, in the role of an insignificant chorus girl, whose insufficient talent soon makes her realise that a happy family life is worth more than any stage success.

Supporting Miss Cummings in the principal roles are Paul Lukas and Phillip Reed.

Several original songs are introduced by Reed in "Glamour," and there are also alluring dance specialties during the unfolding of the plot. The most rhythmic of these is the "Rhumba Exotic," danced by Reed and Miss Cummings to especially composed music.

"THE WORST WOMAN IN PARIS"—ALHAMBRA THEATRE

Scenes from the gaiety and sophistication of the French capital to the quiet and native charm of a small town in Kansas, form the locale in Fox's current release, "The Worst Woman in Paris," now showing at the Alhambra Theatre.

An excellent performance is given by Benita Hume, as the young lady who is known as "The Worst Woman in Paris." Miss Hume is beautiful, understanding, and an artist of the highest calibre.

Others in the cast include Adolphe Menjou, Harvey Stephens, Helen Chandler, Margaret Seddon, Adele St. Maur, Leonard Carey, Mabel Turner and George Irving.

"THE MARLIN OPERA"—QUEEN'S THEATRE

A series of Chinese classical plays are now being presented at the Queen's Theatre by the popular Marlin Opera Company, headed by Miss Evelyn Chen, "the dance queen of China" and R.C.A. Victor star.

Miss Chen, who is the highest paid singer for Chinese gramophone records, is also a screen actress and holds the record as the best girl dancer of the modern western style and tempo in China.

Supporting Miss Chen are 20 other talented players, who are gowned with magnificent theatrical costumes.

"WILD GIRL"—ORIENTAL THEATRE

"Wild Girl," now showing at the Oriental Theatre, presents a picture of California in the days of the gold rush, along with an unusual romance of that colourful period. All the vividness and bracing atmosphere of Bret Harte's famous story, "Salome Jane's Kiss," from which the production is taken, are retained in this delightful film.

Joan Bennett is in the title role as a madcap mountain girl and Charles Farrell plays the part of a grim-purposed Confederate soldier.

"CHANCE AT HEAVEN"—MAJESTIC THEATRE

"Chance at Heaven," starring Joel McCrea, Ginger Rogers, Marian Nixon and Andy Devine, is a fine human drama, produced by R.K.O.-Radio, now at the Majestic Theatre.

The story, which is based on a book by Vina Delmar, author of "Bad Girl," tells the human emotion of a man, who pays the highest price for just one "chance at heaven."

"RAINBOW OVER BROADWAY"—CENTRAL THEATRE

Joan Marsh, Frank Albertson and Lucien Littlefield are starred in George R. Batcheller's musical comedy, "Rainbow Over Broadway," now showing at the Central Theatre.

"Song and dance combined with romance, provides a highly entertaining evening. The story gives an insight into Broadway stage life, filled with beautiful girls and exciting situations."

CHEUNG CHAU NOTES

Informal Concert Is Well Supported

MANY LEAVING THE ISLAND

[From Our Own Correspondent]

Cheung Chau, Sept. 11.
We have had two informal concerts lately. The Rev. and Mrs. Mitchell, who are on their way to Sumatra to join the Mission there, came over specially to sing to us.

To-night Mr. John Braga favoured us with a number of items on the violin playing with his accustomed skill. He also accompanied Mrs. French who contributed two sacred songs. Miss M. Saunders presided at the organ, while three ladies from house 27 sang several Negro spiritual songs, including "Ain't gwine to study war no more," "All my sins are taken away," "Do remember me" and "Little David play on harp."

Mrs. French sang "The end of a Perfect Day," Mr. Braga playing the violin. Six small girls sang several choruses with actions.

By request, Mr. Braga also played a Russian composition and later on in G. Mrs. Cliff accompanying him on the organ.

On Sunday last the Rev. Rousseau took the service, the subject being "Fruit Bearing." The service next Sunday will be taken by the Rev. W. Stott, who has lately returned from furlough and is to be married on Wednesday.

Our numbers are thinning out now. Some left to-day, while tomorrow the Rev. Rex Ray and his family leave; also, Dr. and Mrs. J. R. Saunders and Miss Saunders who have been a great help in all the services and meetings in leading the music.

We are still without our proper launch. The Sun Chau is being overhauled, and may be away for a further two weeks. Her place is now being taken by the Sun U.

The international character of the problem is generally recognised, and the purpose of the conference is to effect co-ordination of investigation.—British Wireless Service.

"PLAYING AROUND"—STAR THEATRE

"Playing Around" is a delightful comedy drama with lovely Alice White and inimitable Chester Morris in the leading roles. It is now showing at the Star Theatre for the first time in the Colony.

The story, taken from Vina Delmar's story of "modern American life," "Sheba," provides plenty of romance, entertainment, and a laugh.

"RAINBOW OVER BROADWAY"—CENTRAL THEATRE

PLASTIC SURGERY PROGRESS

To-day you can meet that girl (with pleasure) at a party.

The transplanting of bone will have astounding results. Already a new thumb has been created from shin-bone and grafted on flesh. To-morrow the surgeons may be able to remark a hand.

Like all new sciences, plastic surgery comes up against unexplained oddities. There was, for instance, the woman whose torn lip was mended by a flap of skin folded over from the cheek. Every time her lips were touched, she felt the sensation on the cheek.

The worst setback, probably, was that of the patient whose destroyed throat tissue was replaced with skin from the neck. After 18 months he found difficulty in swallowing. His own G. F. would have sent for the ambulance and a brandy if he had examined him. The new skin had grown an internal beard of some length.

This story is vouched for by a medical paper.

But already plastic surgery is becoming an exact science. It is even to-day as far above ordinary "face-lifting" as major surgery is above the lancing of a boil.
